

Authors guidelines - Anthropological Researches and Studies

Starting with 2021, the journal has changed the rules for in-text citations and references. The 6th edition of the American Psychological Association style (APA 6th) will be used. (<https://aewintecsitefinity.blob.core.windows.net/sitefinity-storage/docs/default-source/study-at-wintec/apa.pdf>).

Starting with 2016, Anthropological Researches and Studies Journal publishes only articles written in English.

Title, authors, affiliation

The title should be eloquent illustrating the content of manuscript, 10-20 words and should not contain abbreviations.

Specify the complete list of authors. Each author should be registered with his/her birth or baptismal name, followed by the FAMILY NAME (often referred to as a surname or last name). On First Name (Baptism Name, Given at Birth) and Middle Name Capitalize Each Word and on FAMILY NAME (SURNAME) WRITE IN CAPITAL LETTERS (UPPERCASE).

Institutional affiliation (university/college/ hospital) & section (department / discipline) must be provided for each author.

For institutional membership and for other citations use this format of quotation marks "...". For example: "Francisc I. Rainer" Anthropology Institute of the Romanian Academy

Contact person information (email and phone) is mandatory.

One row space will be left after each section: the title, all the authors' names, all institutional affiliations, the correspondence address and the abstract.

Abstract

All articles should begin with a 250-word abstract in English. Please comply with international norms for abstracts following the model.

Objectives. (Main elements of the study stages should be extracted and presented in a more concentrated manner).

Material and methods. (Clear and concise).

Results. (The relevant ones, expressed numerically and statistically evaluated where possible).

Conclusions. (Most important findings, any recommendations).

Keywords: Between 3 and 5 key words, separated by commas and finalized by point, must be provided at the end of abstract for the purpose of indexing. For bio-medical anthropology INDEX Medicus and MEDLINE are recommended for compliance.

Do not use lines in the abstract. One row space will be left before and after the abstract. One row space will be left before and after the keywords.

Abbreviations

Abbreviations are not admitted in the title and are preferable to be avoided in abstracts. Each abbreviation is to be first introduced between brackets next to the phrase subject to abbreviation ARS only admits for standard abbreviations (see AMA guide to abbreviations). Recommended measurement units are those of the International System.

Editorial recommendations to young authors in medical anthropology:

I. Original Articles

Content should be structured in the following sections

Introduction

Survey of literature in the field, research goals, findings.

Material and methods

Accurate verifiable data; techniques and instruments, assessment criteria.

Results

Submit concise data (including tabular forms or figures). Where appropriate, results may be validated by appropriate statistical processing. For statistical analysis, tests used in data evaluating data are to be explicitly mentioned (Chi-square, t-test, ANOVA, correlation, regression, etc.). When data are presented in tabular form, indicate the statistical test by a footnote for each table separately.

For the presentation of statistical data, APA style will be used (<http://my.ilstu.edu/~jkhahn/apastats.html>).

Discussions

Results interpretation, connecting findings to work on similar subjects in mainstream publications.

Conclusions

Emphasis on contribution to knowledge in the area involved.

Acknowledgements

(If appropriated) name institutions, organizations or individuals having favorably influenced completion of research project.

References

II. Reviews and updates

ARS publishes reviews and state of the art updates on topics of interest. Abstracts and text of such contributions shall be structured following the same indications as specified above with respect to the original articles.

III. Case reports

Introduction

Methodology

Case presentation

Discussions

Conclusion(s)

ARS publishes articles written in English. ARS recommends spelling rules set forth in International Webster's Dictionary.

The author(s) should use a decent academic language. Presentation of facts and opinions should be kept to an impersonal speech. The editors will not accept unsupported criticism or defamation against other texts or authors. A derogatory is strongly discouraged.

Authors are fully responsible for the quality of the English/Romanian language, editing of the text, citations, and references. We recommend the appeal to a professional translation service, for example American Manuscript Editors, www.americanmanuscripteditors.com.

Please note that the use of a language editing service is neither a requirement for publication in Anthropological Researches and Studies, nor does it imply or guarantee that the article will be selected for peer review or accepted.

Plagiarism

The articles submitted for publication will be checked for any violation of the copyright law and editors could consider taking corrective actions against it, varying from asking the authors to re-write overlapping sections to the rejection of the manuscript. Text recycling is an acceptable practice only in a few situations – for example, in the methods section of the work, where there are limited ways to describe the used method(s). Sufficient new material has to be provided in the article to justify its publication and the original publication must be referenced in the subsequent publication. Since detection of previous dissemination of the material is not always possible, authors are fully responsible for the originality of content submitted for publication.

Any original material submitted to Anthropological Researches and Studies journal for publication must be accompanied by a filled and signed Copyright Form, available at: <http://www.journalstudiesanthropology.ro/adm/jsq/kcfinder/upload/files/06.05.2019%20Copyright%20Form%20ARS.pdf>

Manuscripts that fail to meet this requirement will not be taken into consideration.

Submission for publication and publication

Manuscripts submitted for publication are to be complete and correct. Authors are responsible for re-checking manuscripts every time they are returned for further editing. Interest of the topic, quality of approach, novelty of approach, date of receipt may influence publishing priority in ARS.

Articles previously published in other journals or in another language are not accepted for publication in ARS.

Failure to comply with editorial recommendations may result in delays in publication or rejection.

Provide the contact details (including email addresses) of four potential peer reviewers for your manuscript. At least one of potential peer reviewers must be from another country than the first author of the paper. The reviewers should be experts in their field, able to provide an objective assessment of the manuscript. The suggested peer reviewers should not have published with any of the authors of the manuscript within the past two years. They should not be current collaborators or members of the same research institution. The suggested reviewers will be considered alongside potential reviewers recommended by the Editorial team.
